The nominee of the convention may be neither Mr. Blaine nor Mr. Harrison, for repubcan conventions have had a habit of selecting coolly the best man to run, and not being stampeded to any one powerful candidate unless beforehand the sense of the party inclines irresistibly that way. Whether it be the incumbent, the Maine statesman or "some other good man," the great work done for the public by both Mr. Harrison and Mr. Blaine will be unaffected by the result at Minneapolis, As to the principle struggle in the convention, it would seem from what is known that there has not been in years a more earnest and well fought contest. The leaders are well matched and the forces at command, apparently, nearly equally divided. What will conclude the confliet may not be foreseen, at least not in any very definite sense. A number of things enter into the calculation. The convention will probably be in session several days settling contests for seats and the matter of temporary organization. This delay in getting down to business will be used to strengthen or weaken the respective sides in the controversy. The decisive action may not be taken until late in the preent or even far into the succeding week. But it is likely not to be delayed very long after preliminary questions are settled and the drift of the undecided delegations or members is ascer-

Floods have been unusually destructive this year. Oil fires are always likely to take place in the oil region. Seldom does a combination of flood and fire work such devastation and inspire such alarm as the midnight terror that fell upon the people of Titusville and Oil City. Pennsylvania, and, indeed, throughout the whole of that section. The country has suffered fearfully from the breaking of dams in small rivers and the resulting overflow of densely populated valleys. It seems that while the recent extraordinarily heavy rains were insufficient to have swollen Oil creek to abnormal size, it was the imperfection of a dam that caused the stream to get beyond all former bounds and prepare the way for the bursting their houses were burned without the possithrow additional light on the origin of the them. catastrophe, but it is clear now that persons residing in thickly settled industrial centers, where the leading industry or industries are pursued under a constant sense of peril, cannot safeguard themselves too carefully, no matter at what cost of time, labor or money. No dams ought to be permitted of a size sufficient to pond up the great mass of water in a bold or THE MONUMENTAL. large stream, and such barriers as are built across a considerable creek or river should be provided with flumes able to release the flood. This provision of a safe sluiceway in reservoirs might have saved numerous lives and large property in times past. ***

The recent extension in this country and Great Britain of copyright protection to newspaper articles has awakened interest as to what the courts would hold in a well-defined case | New Lines Of Stylish Summer under the law. The English courts having decided that a piece of news cannot be copy righted as news simply, that is, in its substance, the copyright question seems to turn on the value of copyright of special news and contributed matter as to its form. As American courts are influenced by English precedents to a considerable extent it may be reasonably expected that similar decisions will be pronounced on this side the Atlantic whenever an infringement of the copyright shall have taken place. As a matter of simple justice, both to the public and the side the Atlantic whenever an infringement of the particular publisher, the English decision intermediate prices almost encless, each one reprecited seems very timely and proper under all senting a line of from six to eight shapes, the circumstances. The form of special matter is protected, while the substance of news is declared to be public property.

There is no more in the cry on one side that the backers of Mr. Blaine are disappointed office seekers than there is on the other that the backers of Mr. Harrison are grateful office holders. Office holders are always expected to shout for their creator, and office seekers to Actual values, $7.50. clamor for a new dispenser of patronage, but probably there never was at any national convention so many office holders actively working for their chief as at Minneapolis.

The campaign songster has been in a state of repression from which he will be liberated to some extent by the decision of the convention. His personal preferences do not figure in his view of the situation beyond the consideration that it is easier to find rhymes for Blaine than for any other name before the convention. The question of Mr. Blaine's successor, which would ordinarily be one of supreme interest, sinks into silent obscurity in the presence of the Minneapolis convention.

818 7TE ST. N. W. "THE LIGHT OF THE FLOUR WORLD." ME LOUR WORLD."

The most brilliant "star" in the flour frmament in "Gerea." It is not a new star of a dim and uncertain light, but is and has been for many years a steady orb of constantly increasing brilliancy.

Housekeepers who have used "Geres" for years say: "It makes "more bread, "lighter" bread, "whiter" bread and 'better' bread than any other flour they have ever used."

Send to your gracer's for "Geres" flour and take no other. We only wholesale it.

thing you desire, and the price is sure to gratify you.

The foremost styles for ladies are Southern, Neilson and Sailor Ties, pointed, opers and common sense toes, with or without tips.

The popular leathers are Russis Calf and Russet and Red Goat. There are Suedes, in all shades and colors. Russets are particularly popular.

For gentlemen Russets seem to meet with the most favor, although our Calf Oxfords and Strap Ties (in all styles) have many admirers. Russis Calf Shoes in Low Bluchers and Oxfords are here without end, as well as Russet Tan Goat, High and LOW SHOES.
